

The Science Games Picture Gallery from the LompocRecord

Pricilla launching a projectile with a trebuchet to strike and knock down a target.

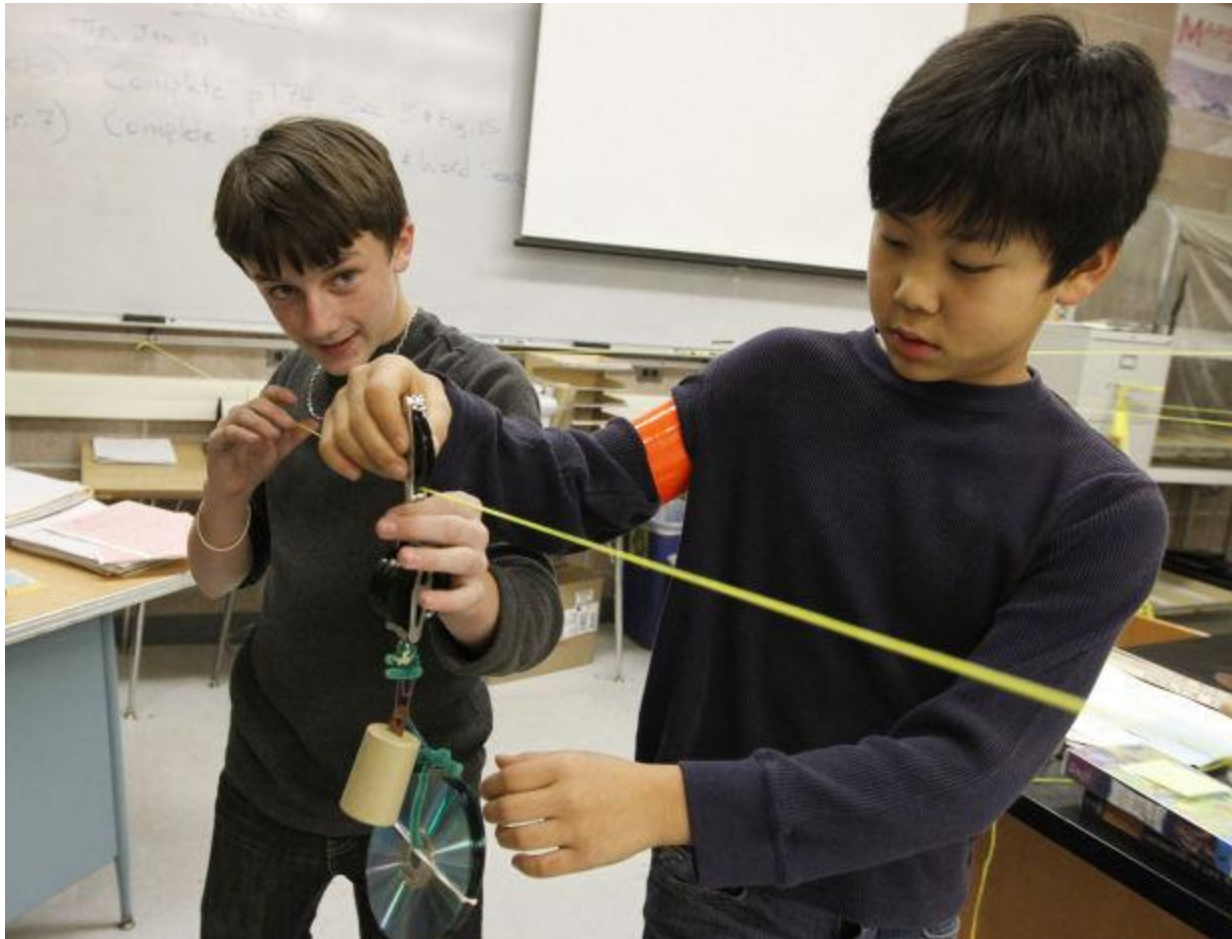

Seventh-grader Priscilla Perez launches a tennis ball using a wooden trebuchet during an accuracy test Thursday at the first-ever Science Games at Vandenberg Middle School, where 24 students designed and tested projects.

http://www.lompocrecord.com/news/local/education/gallery-science-games-at-vandenberg-middle-school/collection_25b08f8a-6cf6-11e2-b3d2-001a4bcf887a.html#5

Seventh graders Casey Folk, left, and Amanda Liberotti fill a plastic bag with a hair dryer to create a hot air balloon Thursday during the first ever Science Games at Vandenberg Middle School where 24 students designed and tested projects.

http://www.lompocrecord.com/news/local/education/gallery-science-games-at-vandenberg-middle-school/collection_25b08f8a-6cf6-11e2-b3d2-001a4bcf887a.html#5

Seventh-graders Andrew Ross, left, and Cedric Kwon line their carriage on a zip line after adding weights to hopefully increase its speed.

http://www.lompocrecord.com/news/local/education/gallery-science-games-at-vandenberg-middle-school/collection_25b08f8a-6cf6-11e2-b3d2-001a4bcf887a.html#5

Eighth graders Valerie Laufer, left, and Kaylie Czap work out the kinks of the mousetrap car they built to race Thursday during the first ever Science Games at Vandenberg Middle School where 24 students designed and tested projects.

http://www.lompocrecord.com/news/local/education/gallery-science-games-at-vandenberg-middle-school/collection_25b08f8a-6cf6-11e2-b3d2-001a4bcf887a.html#5

Seventh graders Joel Weber, left, and Justin Yates, fashion a plastic bag into a cushion to protect their egg for an egg drop Thursday during the first ever Science Games at Vandenberg Middle School where 24 students designed and tested projects.

http://www.lompocrecord.com/news/local/education/gallery-science-games-at-vandenberg-middle-school/collection_25b08f8a-6cf6-11e2-b3d2-001a4bcf887a.html#5

Students work on adding weight to their carriages hoping to increase their speeds as they race down a zip line Thursday during the first ever Science Games at Vandenberg Middle School where 24 students designed and tested projects.

http://www.lompocrecord.com/news/local/education/gallery-science-games-at-vandenberg-middle-school/collection_25b08f8a-6cf6-11e2-b3d2-001a4bcf887a.html#5